Hi Derek.

I sent the email below and also rang Jackie to seek advice about when the RFQ would be due (You were correct, and Jackie was not there). A closer read of her email indicates that NSW are just now formulating the RFQ, so that might take some time, which might suit in terms of timing for us.

I am cc-ing Simon and Rebecca into this email in case you need assistance putting the Request For Quote together. Ideally we can do it when I return, but we'll see.

I have also attached the documents and spreadsheet we have worked on thus far. As well as the original email that you received from Jackie, before NSW decided/announced that they wanted proceed with a more formal RFQ.

I understand you are on leave next week, and you leave for OS on 6 Aug.

Kind regards

Narmon

Dear Jackie

Do you have an indication of the likely deadline for the RFQ that Derek will be attending to.

I would ideally like to assist him in my role as Research Development Officer, but I am about to go on leave until 25 July. If the deadline is before I return, I will make arrangements for a colleague to assist.

Can you please advise as soon as you can. (I am on leave shortly).

Kind regards

Narmon

Dear Jackie,

I was going to email you the entire tender (including budget) Monday morning but will hold off in light of what you have just advised.

It's tricky because I have LEAVE next wed for a week. If things get tight I will send you our preliminary documents in any event [as I only have Monday and Tuesday available next week]

Thanks

Derek

Hi Derek

I had a meeting with my manager and mentioned your possible interest in submitting a proposal.

If you are still keen, just let me know but don't work on a detailed proposal yet.

According to our procurement policy, we will be sending you and the other interested parties that we nominated a 'Request for quote (RFQ)' which is not a template as such but will guide your proposal with key questions.

It will save you time :)

We are developing our RFQ now and once it is signed off, I can email it to you.

Regards

Jackie
