Yes, a murder, but how to guess that it is anti-gay?

Craig sent me this re: Russell

The hair seem compelling W. Maybe we should classify as Pro-active, Anti-gay, multiple?

Hi Derek

I understand your predicament. However its easier for us. We have no evidence that would overrule the Coroners findings, who by all rights viewed much more evidence then we did. Her finding is based on the entirety of evidence presented under the Strike Force Taradale matter (a lot of which is actually outside our terms of reference for Parrabell). For us given what we did review, coupled with the Coroners findings, SBC was the best suited. Although I don't disagree that II is also suitable. For us the tipping point was the hair located in RUSSELL hand. Whilst it cant be located there is evidence from photographs and statement from officer at scene that RUSSELL was clutching some hair- Dr Cala indicated (from photographs) that there was a high possibility that it wasn't RUSSELL's. Whilst not conclusive, it certainly puts it into the suspected category (at least for a murder) as for gay hate motivation ?- that is purely circumstantial and will remain that way until Offenders are identified

Good luck with the headaches - your nearly there !

Regards

Craig
