about 27 years old and he no longer returned to the racing game after that. Around this time he met [154] who used to work with JOHN DUTFIELD at John SANDS and after a couple of months they moved in together at [154]'s flat at [REDACTED]

From this time Bill's personality changed and he often became depressed and he started to resort to drinking alcohol. He was suffering from Alopecia (Baldness) which was brought on by nerves. From then on it was difficult for the family to communicate with him due to the fact of bitterness between the family.

He was placed on an invalid pension in relation to his nerves and over the last ten years there has not been much family contact with the victim. When contact was made with him by a family member he kept his private life to himself and that the only friends the family knew of was [154]

The victim moved in with Arther ASHWORTH to an address in [REDACTED] Wylde Street, Potts Point about ten years ago. They then moved in together at an address in Allison Road, Randwick where they lived for about five years and then they moved to Arthurs old address at Spit Road, Mosman near the victims house and about 6 months ago the victim moved into [REDACTED] Spit Road. Mosman and Arthur moved into a retirement village.

During his stay with Arthur of the past ten years [154] kept in close contact with them and the three of them were good friends.

The victim was a very private person and only had [154] and Arthur as close friends. He apparently was very lonely when he moved into [REDACTED] Spit Road and he mentioned that he wanted to meet other people and improve his communication skills.

The victim was spoken to by his twin brother John who saw him in the Warringah Mall in the coffee shop about 1.15pm on Monday the 18.11.91.

At the time he appeared to be happy and in good spirits and mentioned that he was going to the movies that day with Arthur.

Dr GOLDMAN, dermatologist, was treating him for his baldness.
