	and the two men returned to Melbours	le.
	The deceased was not happy with the car as more work had to be done on the car and the firm agreed to do it. Mrs. DRISCOLL further stated that about 2-3 weeks prior to his death, he told her that he was not happy with the car and the same firm had advertised a Buick for sale and they contacted the deceased and ha went to Melbourne with 135 135 to inspect the motor vehicle On the deceased's return, he told	- her they wanted too much money for 4	the vehicle but he wanted this car and was going to trade in the Pontis	c.
	The price of the car was over $30,000-00 with the conversion to right hand drive and on road costs. The deceased at this time was 'rippi people off in the businness to get money to buy this car and his sister was aware of this and scolded him for it. He also attempted to borrow	• money from his sister to help purche	80 by two men presumably on 28/8/80 the date that the vehicle was first registered in BEDNER's name. However, as there were mechanical problems with the vehicle, a delay in registering the vehicle was experienced by the
