December 1997. I do not remember what time she would have been in the cafe. I noticed the woman because the scabs on her arms were distinctive. I remember the woman as being rather large in size with freckly fair skin. She was also wearing a dress. I do not believe that I would be able to positively identify her if I saw her again. I cannot recall seeing that person in the company of anybody else. That is simply because I can't remember in that detail.
