ADELAIDE

MARS BAR CLOSÉS

EASTER Sunday saw the end of an era in Adelaide with the closure of the Mars Bar. "The Bar" as it was affectionately known for over eight years has been host to many glamorous shows, the odd gay frolic in the parks of Adelaide, Belair and Brownhill Creek known as the Mars Bar Picnic and to many interstate and international guests all of whom have enjoyed the hospitality of its management and staff.

Times change and, unfortunately for the Mars Bar, so do peoples' habits. In the last year with the Green Dragon offering a cross section of entertainment including some big Sydney and Melbourne names and the opening of Armstrong's Tavern on Sunday nights (which was The Bar's show night) the Mars Bar simply couldn't compete.

Due to rising costs and lack of patronage the management were forced to liquidate after an eviction notice giving them seven days to pay back rent or vacate the premises was served.

BLACKJACKS

A NEW look Black Jacks with Glen Waller, former manager of the Mars Bar, is starting to make its mark on Adelaide. The venue on North Terrace where Patches was formerly situated operates into the wee small hours of the morning. Recently Black Jacks (Heaven or 142 Club as it has been known) tried bands on Friday and Saturday nights but due to the high cost they returned to a full DJ setup.

There is talk that they will be having shows again shortly but only time will tell. Definitely the place to go for a late drink. Frequentated mostly by the blitz crowd.

PARK TAVERN

IN January, 1984, the Park Tavern opened Palms Disco as a mixed gay venue. Due to lack of support, however, the management decided to change to a straight format with gays still being more than welcome. Since the closure of the Mars Bar, though, Palms has again become a mixed gay venue with the best night being Saturday. So come on guys give it a go because I think the venue has a lot going for it, the least of which being that the venue is run by gays.

JESSICA'S

IN October/November last year Management had talks with prominent gay promoter Judy Mack about the possibility of starting women's nights on Thursdays. An agreement was made and given the name Jessica's, the first night of which was a huge success with 250 women patronising the venue. More recently Jessica's has become Adelaide's premium women's venue with between 5200 and 400 women every Thursday.

WENDY WAYNE TRIBUTE

BOBBY GOLDSMITH PARTY

AT the first anniversary party of the Bobby Goldsmith Foundation, held in Sydney, upwards of $7000 dollars was raised to continue the work of the charity organisation. (Photos: JOHN JENNER)
