23/12/1993

1am James MacALISTER, William MacALISTER, Joe, Hamish and Jan WILKINSON leave 'Gilligans' bar and go to the Courthouse Hotel across the road. Prior to leaving the hotel William MacALISTER gave DYE a brown paper 'Country Road' bag containing 'Country Road' glasses and various Compact Discs. Whilst being in the Oxford Hotel, the victim was seen to have in his possession a brown or black wallet containing money.

2.15am DYE met Peter SNELLING and Michael TRAVINSKI near the news stand outside the Oxford Hotel. SNELLING asked DYE to accompany them to the Flinders Hotel, which he agreed to and they then walked together to the Flinders Hotel, 63-65 Flinders Street, Darlinghurst. SNELLING and TRAVINSKI played pool and DYE moved around the bar.

2.30am David WALKER, a security guard at the Court House hotel, sees three males walk around the hotel from Oxford Street into Bourke Street. 2.45am DYE leaves the Flinders Hotel, without telling SNELLING or TRAVINSKI, and walks in a northerly direction towards Taylor Square (seen by Flinders Hotel barman James HILLMAN).

3am SNELLING and TRAVINSKI look for DYE in hotel, however cannot find him. They then walk down to the Exchange Hotel, Oxford Street, Darlinghurst and do not see DYE again that morning.

3.30am Security guard David WALKER sees the male wearing the red baseball cap in an alcove in Kinsela's, 383 Bourke Street, Darlinghurst. He then sees a second maori male in that alcove. WALKER returns inside the Court House hotel to get his radio before walking to the alcove, however at this time there is no sight of the males.

4am Barman James HILLMAN again saw DYE walking from outside the Taylor Square court complex, Oxford Street, Darlinghurst across the road towards Cafe 191 or the small park at Bourke and Oxford Streets.

4am DYE enters the Court House Hotel, 189 Oxford Street, Darlinghurst through the northern entrance on Bourke Street. He was alone at the time and it was obvious that he was very intoxicated because of his appearance and the fact that he had urinated on himself. He was refused service in the public bar and he then left the hotel, through the northern door and walked towards Taylor Square.

4.30am DYE was seen lying in the gutter at the intersection of Little Oxford Street and Campbell Street, Surry Hills by a passing motorist Scott NEILSON. NEILSON saw three Islander males leaning over DYE's body and he saw one of them remove something from DYE. NEILSON followed these males and last saw them walking in a westerly direction along Oxford Street, Darlinghurst near Pelican Street. NEILSON then informs Police of events.

4.30am Owen READ, a vagrant, discovers DYE on the roadway. He cannot see DYE's face and believes that it is one of his friends. He moves DYE slightly and DYE groans. READ then leaves DYE and returns a short time later when DYE is being treated by emergency personnel.
