Hi
Just touching base to let you know I haven't forgotten about your brother's matter. I haven't received any confirmation as yet of the date of the next panel where they review the document I put together of my recommendations. Our investigative capacity has been significantly reduced these past few months attending to urgent summons for a current special commission of inquiry into LGBTIQ hate crimes and we weren't able to get additional staffing to help us with these requests. The requests will start to reduce over the next few weeks as we are nearing the close of the commission. I am also at a court trial for the next 2 weeks but if I have any updates I will let you know. Thank you for your patience as I appreciate that you've been waiting since  for some progress to be made when the matter was first sent to another officer for review. I hope you and your family are well. Take care and chat soon.
